Greetings my fellow citizens of Santaquin,

I'd like to start this message with a story I heard recently.

“Every year on Memorial Day, a young woman visits the small community cemetery in her hometown. She is often drawn to four gravestones standing side by side. They mark the resting place of Clyde, LeRoy, Rolon and Rulon Borgstrom. She never knew them personally, but she knew their story.

In 1944, five sons from the Borgstrom family went to war. In less than six months, four of the five brothers had been killed. When President Franklin D. Roosevelt heard these tragedies all striking the same family, he ordered the military to send the fifth brother, Boyd, home from the Pacific. Boyd did not want to leave, but he finally relented and came home. The bodies of these four brothers were laid to rest in the small cemetery and the whole community came together to mourn the Borgstrom's incredible loss.

Many years later, during one of the young woman's visits to the cemetery, she met with the wife of the surviving brother. She asked her how the mother of the Borgstrom boy's coped with such a loss. The wife responded, “She turned to Heaven.”

Now, heavenly thoughts don't remove us from life's realities, but they do provide perspective. They help us remember and reflect.”

In this past month, we as a community, have had a chance to remember and reflect. The tragic loss of three of our young daughters and friends has unfortunately given us that chance. During these dark days of loss, may we follow the example of mother Borgstrom and turn to Heaven to receive the peace and comfort that can only come from there. May we each remember and reflect upon the lives of these three beautiful young girls. May we also remember their families during this time of loss and truly come together as a community.

Sincerely,

Mayor Kirk Hunsaker
